SIXTY YEARS OF BANKING.

It was a pleasing function that took place at the Chief Banking House of the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney last week, on the occasion of the celebration of the attainment by Mr. T. A. Dibbs of his diamond jubilee as a banker.

Some remarkable figures were quoted by the chairman, illustrative of the great progress of the institution with which Mr. Dibbs has so long been associated.

Mr. Cohen might have gone further. He might, for instance, have dwelt upon the great services that the banks have performed in this country.

We are aware that there is a certain claim that is apt to regard these institutions as huge octopi, whose far-reaching tentacles suck the life-blood out of the community.

While others prefer to liken them to glorified pawn-broking establishments, whose sole object of existence is to extract usurious rates of interest from those least able to pay.

These ideas, however, founded on a complete misconception of the functions of banking institutions, as well as ignorance of the character of the men by whom they are controlled.

All we have to do is to remember the state of affairs existing in New South Wales—then the eastern portion of Australia—in the early days before banks were established.

This carries us back beyond even the earliest recollections of Mr. Dibbs, when sixty years ago he elected to follow the profession of a banker.

Early in last century on the Governor with his Treasury chest, rested full responsibility in connection with the currency.

Coins were in short supply, though in great variety of shape, size, and metal.

Gold coins, ducats, gold mohurs, gold pieces, "holey-staters," and "dumpees" competing with one another and with rum as the circulating medium.

A little later rum became practically the sole medium, for Captain Kemp tells us that when he left Sydney in 1810 "the Governor, clergy, officers, civil and military, all ranks and descriptions of people, bartered with rum."

With the advent of the gold era, this changed, and we need hardly mention how beneficial the change has been and how impossible would have been any great progress under the old conditions.

It was only twenty years after the time of which Captain Kemp spoke that the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney was established, and it had been in existence but fourteen years when Mr. Dibbs joined the staff in a junior capacity, which he was destined for no less than forty years.

It is difficult to overestimate the value of a prudent banker to a community. He is in a position of grave responsibility.

To his safe-keeping thousands entrust their savings. They do so with confidence, feeling that when they demand repayment it will not be denied them either at call or upon some fixed date mutually agreed upon.

Meanwhile their savings are being used by others in developing the country and carrying on the commerce of the land.

THE CRISIS IN KOREA.

It is not very clear wherein the action of the Emperor of Korea in sending delegates to the Hague Conference should have been found by his Ministers to endanger the nation.

Possibly, however, it was felt that Japan would resent Korea's being thus represented, or even the Emperor's attempt to secure representation for his country.

But the object would be to found on the Japanese-Korean agreement of a couple of years ago, which placed in the hands of the Japanese Government the control and direction of the foreign relations of Korea—an agreement which was formally communicated to the Powers, and which would have much to do with the refusal of the Conference to receive delegates who were not sent with the permission of the practical sovereign.

It will be remembered in connection with this agreement that the Emperor of Korea declared that he was sending his Ministers to the Hague at the point of the bayonet, and that he himself had no option but to accept it.

However that may be, with the installation of Marquis Ito as the Resident-General at Seoul, who has it in charge to put under this agreement in regard to Korean affairs, it was plain enough that the independence of the country was nothing more than a mere name.

The Emperor was no more an independent sovereign than are the Indian princes with British Residents at their courts, or than Tunis with its French Resident-General.

There may be some sceptical persons who will be inclined to discount Marquis Ito's statement that the Korean Cabinet acted wholly on its own initiative in demanding the Emperor's resignation. Whatever other agencies there were, however, certainly he kept concealed, so that everything has the appearance of being spontaneous.

Ministers asked the Emperor to take certain action in the interests of the country; he agreed to do so, and the result was a fair warning left for him to do then but to bow to the inevitable as gracefully as possible. Indeed, he may secretly consider himself very fortunate in being dismissed so quietly, especially when he calls to mind the savage manner in which his Empress was murdered on account of her anti-Japanese propensities and views.

For the rest, nobody will pretend to regret the retirement of this monarch from a position which he did nothing to adorn or to improve.

For the first time in his reign, up to the present, the Chinese-Japanese and the power which he wielded was not used in the interests of his people, who were practically the slaves of vicious and ignorant nobles.

For the last ten years of his reign he has reigned in the title of Emperor, which he conferred on himself. Neither as King nor as Emperor did he show himself alive to his responsibilities, and he has suffered the natural fate of the ruler who lets his country slip.

The Emperor's reign has been a failure. He has been a failure in all his responsibilities, and he has suffered the natural fate of the ruler who lets his country slip.

base of cloud. Both teams met with magnificent reception. Australia, being led by Burgess and the visitors by Hunter. The two teams assembled, and jointly cheered the vice-regal representatives.

THE PLAY.

N.E. SCORED IN TWO MINUTES.
Barnett kicked off for Australia, and Roberts, instead of the usual kick into touch, ran to centre, where a knock-on occurred. The visitors' kick was taken by Francis and Johnston broke away at the head of a splendid forward run, and got to the 25 where Francis picked up, but was tackled. Another forward run, with Francis at the head, advanced the visitors' kick to the home goal, where Seeling secured, and scored a try 30 yards from the corner. Wallace kicked unaccountably for goal.

New Zealand, one try, 3 points.

Australia, nil.

EXCITING WORK AND A TRY.

The pace was a cracking one. At 10.30 the visitors started a passing run, in which the ball was handled by Roberts, Myott, Burgess, and Johnston. The visitors' kick was taken by Francis and Johnston broke away at the head of a splendid forward run, and got to the 25 where Francis picked up, but was tackled. Another forward run, with Francis at the head, advanced the visitors' kick to the home goal, where Seeling secured, and scored a try 30 yards from the corner. Wallace kicked unaccountably for goal.

New Zealand, one try, 3 points.

Australia, nil.

ROUND THE GROUND.

Sections of the ground were more crowded on Saturday than on the previous Saturday, but the policy was a much more bearable place. Vociferous cheering usually followed the kicking of the ball. The visitors' kick was taken by Francis and Johnston broke away at the head of a splendid forward run, and got to the 25 where Francis picked up, but was tackled. Another forward run, with Francis at the head, advanced the visitors' kick to the home goal, where Seeling secured, and scored a try 30 yards from the corner. Wallace kicked unaccountably for goal.

New Zealand, one try, 3 points.

Australia, nil.

DIX RETURNS TO FULL-BACK.

The English players showed the form which made them famous in Great Britain and in Australia. Again they came down the field, and to take full-back, to obtain a try, the home team being allowed to force. In this dash Russell was injured by the return to the line-out. During this temporary stoppage a re-arrangement was made in the positions of the Australian players. The visitors' kick was taken by Francis and Johnston broke away at the head of a splendid forward run, and got to the 25 where Francis picked up, but was tackled. Another forward run, with Francis at the head, advanced the visitors' kick to the home goal, where Seeling secured, and scored a try 30 yards from the corner. Wallace kicked unaccountably for goal.

New Zealand, one try, 3 points.

Australia, nil.

CARMICHAEL KICKS A POSTER.

Russell here retired, and a poster was taken by Burgess. Line-out work by both teams occupied attention for some time. Burgess, Johnston, and Myott were playing a remarkably fine game for the visitors. At this stage the Australian players were holding their own. Burgess and Carmichael taking his place in the three-line line-out. The visitors' kick was taken by Francis and Johnston broke away at the head of a splendid forward run, and got to the 25 where Francis picked up, but was tackled. Another forward run, with Francis at the head, advanced the visitors' kick to the home goal, where Seeling secured, and scored a try 30 yards from the corner. Wallace kicked unaccountably for goal.

New Zealand, one try, 3 points.

HOW THE AUSTRALIANS WERE BEATEN.

The above question could be answered very simply. The visitors' kick was taken by Francis and Johnston broke away at the head of a splendid forward run, and got to the 25 where Francis picked up, but was tackled. Another forward run, with Francis at the head, advanced the visitors' kick to the home goal, where Seeling secured, and scored a try 30 yards from the corner. Wallace kicked unaccountably for goal.

New Zealand, one try, 3 points.

Australia, nil.

A BRILLIANT TRY.

A perfect series of passes was shown by the New Zealanders, easily the best of the present tour. Francis secured just inside the home line, and passed to Wallace, who was tackled and the ball was going out of play. The visitors' kick was taken by Francis and Johnston broke away at the head of a splendid forward run, and got to the 25 where Francis picked up, but was tackled. Another forward run, with Francis at the head, advanced the visitors' kick to the home goal, where Seeling secured, and scored a try 30 yards from the corner. Wallace kicked unaccountably for goal.

New Zealand, one try, 3 points.

Australia, nil.

SECOND HALF.

Francis opened the game, and kicked to Dix, who came to a misunderstanding with another Australian, and between them the ball was kicked into the hands of the visitors. The visitors' kick was taken by Francis and Johnston broke away at the head of a splendid forward run, and got to the 25 where Francis picked up, but was tackled. Another forward run, with Francis at the head, advanced the visitors' kick to the home goal, where Seeling secured, and scored a try 30 yards from the corner. Wallace kicked unaccountably for goal.

New Zealand, one try, 3 points.

Australia, nil.

CARMICHAEL KICKS GOALS.

The pace of the visitors was altogether up to the mark. The visitors' kick was taken by Francis and Johnston broke away at the head of a splendid forward run, and got to the 25 where Francis picked up, but was tackled. Another forward run, with Francis at the head, advanced the visitors' kick to the home goal, where Seeling secured, and scored a try 30 yards from the corner. Wallace kicked unaccountably for goal.
